The Collect.

O Holy Spirit, pour into our hearts that most wonderful gift of love, without which we are dead before you; teach us to impart this knowledge to humanity, following the example of our Lord the Christ. Amen.

The Epistle for Quinquagesima is from the writings of international healer Alan Young.

There are two points to understanding, namely unconditional love, and complete surrender. Unconditional love is the power we receive from God, both directly and through other beings living on earth and the spirit world. We enable ourselves to receive that love by expressing love to God and others. Thus it is a two way street. Complete surrender is the abandonment by us of our own desires, expectations, and personal wills. This allows God's will to manifest itself, even if it means moving from the physical vehicle by so called death. This surrender eliminates fear, establishes trust, and allows the power to flow without obstruction. It establishes peace and harmony, and opens us to spiritual guidance. What could be more natural and beautiful than allowing the force of life and love, which created us in the first place, to flow through us and restore us to pristine glory.

Here Endeth the Epistle.

The Gospel for the Sunday called Quinquagesima is from the words of Annie Kirkwood in her book Mary's Message to the World.

The Utopian life you on earth seek is your spiritual life which is lived from the highest Spiritual level. This is your desire; to live in complete happiness. It is your memory of the Garden of Eden. This is what you seek to regain. In learning of Spiritual love you expand your knowledge and vision of the spiritual world. My desire is that you know how God works to preserve your spiritual life. How great his love is for you, that each cell in your body is surrounded by God's love. Your physical body is transitory and not permanent, yet God's love is active in every function. How much more active is he in your permanent spiritual function, which is the real life where you are even more special to God. God's love is active on every level and is an inseparable part of us, and this can be magically amplified to enormous levels if we but return a fraction of this love to others.

Praise Be to Thee O Christ.
